FLYING THE FLAG

by Diana Sears

Perhaps, because Flag Day on June 14 and Independence Day on July 4 are less than a month apart, I see more United States' flags flying this time of year. On an idle day of sunshine and gentle wind recently, I watched my own flag flying and thought about the significance of its design.

In 1777 the Continental Congress adopted a resolution: "Resolved that the flag of the United States be 13 stripes alternate red and white, that the union be 13 stars, white in a blue field representing a new constellation."

As new states joined the union, the configuration of those stars went from a circle to a rectangle. Each change has required an executive order from the president. Back in 1959 the admittance of first Alaska and then Hawaii produced a public geometric discussion on how best to change the number of stars from 48 to 50 in that blue field. The new diagonal arrangement seemed strange at first, but now I barely notice.

More important, I recognize the pride I felt then and still do, in the inclusion of two non-European populations as well as the indigenous people in our nation. It seemed a basis for continuing and broadening our progress toward civil rights for all.

The Pledge of Allegiance to the flag has changed slightly in my lifetime, too. The phrase, "under God" was inserted shortly after World War II ended. Taken in its entirety, the pledge is not a vague statement. For me its most powerful phrase is in the final six words: "with liberty and justice for all." I take that seriously.

While determined not to become embroiled in present day arguments, I require of myself and my nation to protect that liberty and to provide justice. When I think of the possibilities for all of us, my heart soars along with those flags flying in the wind. ~ Diana

STAY FOCUSED HOME IMPROVEMENT

Stay Focused Home Improvement comes on board to support the Kiawanda Community Center and their newsletter, the Kiawanda Kapers, and would like to thank each of you for your warm welcome into the neighborhood.

While having a groovy time, Suzy and I are looking forward to digging in and participating in this community.

We can't wait to eat berries right off the vine and hone our crabbing skills. Our beer analysis skills are sharp, witty, and calculated, and we challenge you to a spelling bee over a cold one . . . winner buys.

Our hope is that you get to know us a bit further by visiting our website www.StayFocusedHomeImprovement.com. There you'll find a few examples of our work and links to Suzy's master gardening articles. On the website, a good starting point is the Weekly Messages page.

Hope to run into you soon,
Mike & Suzy
